Dear Ms. Mariani:

The 65 Project is a bipartisan, nonprofit effort to protect democracy from abuse of the legal system by holding accountable lawyers who engage in fraudulent and malicious efforts to overturn legitimate elections.

We write to request that the Office of Disciplinary Counsel investigate the actions taken by Linda A. Kerns (Attorney Identification No. 84495) relating to her representation of Donald J. Trump in his effort to overturn the 2020 presidential election. Ms. Kerns helmed Mr. Trump's litigation team in Donald J. Trump for President, Inc., et al. v. Boockvar, et al., 4:20-cv-02078 (M.D. Pa.), in which she sought to have the court disenfranchise nearly seven million voters. As the district court stated when denying the effort:

> This Court has been unable to find any case in which a plaintiff has sought such a drastic remedy in the contest of an election, in terms of the sheer volume of votes asked to be invalidated. One might expect that when seeking such a startling outcome, a plaintiff would come formidably armed with compelling legal arguments and factual proof of rampant corruption, such that this Court would have no option but to regrettably grant the proposed injunctive relief despite the impact it would have on such a large group of citizens.
> That has not happened. Instead, this Court has been presented with strained legal arguments without merit and speculative accusations, unpled in the operative complaint and unsupported by evidence. In the United States of America, this cannot justify the disenfranchisement of a single voter, let alone all the voters of its sixth most populated state. Our people, laws, and institutions demand more.[1]

Pennsylvania's Rules of Professional Conduct demand more, as well. "The primary purpose of our lawyer discipline system in Pennsylvania is to protect the public, preserve the integrity of the courts, and deter unethical conduct." Off. of Disciplinary Couns. v. Czmus, 586 Pa. 22, 32–33, 889 A.2d 1197, 1203 (2005) (citing In re Iulo, 564 Pa. 205, 766 A.2d 335, 339 (2001)). "Truth is the cornerstone of the judicial system; a license to practice law requires allegiance and fidelity to truth." Office of Disciplinary Counsel v. Surrick, 561 Pa. 167, 749 A.2d 441, 449 (2000) (citation omitted). "Whenever an attorney is dishonest, that purpose is served by disbarment." Office of Disciplinary Counsel v. Grigsby, 493 Pa. 194, 425 A.2d 730, 733 (1981).

By filing a frivolous lawsuit untethered to either law or fact and in seeking an extreme remedy unheard of in any court of law, Ms. Kerns not only crossed, but blew past, the ethical standards to which she is bound. Ms. Kerns's conduct violated Rules of Professional Conduct 3.1 (Meritorious Claims and Contentions), 3.3 (Candor Toward Tribunal), 4.4 (Rights of Third Parties), and 8.4 (Misconduct).

A full investigation by the Office of Disciplinary Counsel will demonstrate the egregious nature of Ms. Kerns's actions, especially when considered in light of her purposes, the direct and possible consequences of her behavior, and the serious risk that Ms. Kerns will repeat such conduct unless disciplined.

CONDUCT GIVING RISE TO THE COMPLAINT

Donald Trump lost the 2020 presidential election.[2] He also lost Pennsylvania and its 20 electoral votes.[3] In an effort to overturn the legitimate results, Mr. Trump and his allies filed at least 65 baseless lawsuits across the country, alleging conspiracies and fraud and claiming the election was stolen. They brought these claims despite the fact that officials across the country and at every level of government have called the 2020 election "the most secure in American history."[4]

None of Mr. Trump's efforts succeeded. In some instances, courts have imposed sanctions on the lawyers who participated in the lawsuits and referred them for sanctions by their respective state bars.[5] The disciplinary arms of various state bars are pursuing the matters.[6]

Ms. Kerns helped lead the charge in Pennsylvania. Her efforts began before Election Day, when she wrote letters to the City of Philadelphia, misstating the law and, in one instance, demanding that the City produce to her a list of all voters who dropped off mail-in ballots at the City Hall drop box on October 14, 2020.[7]

On November 9, 2020, Ms. Kerns signed and filed a Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief, which initiated Donald J. Trump for President, Inc., et al. v. Boockvar, et al. Over the next eighteen days, Ms. Kerns signed the following documents:

- Memorandum in Support of Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction
- Amended Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief
- Amended Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief – Redlined
- Opposition to Motion to Dismiss
- Motion for an Order to Show Cause
- Motion to Withdraw

In addition, Ms. Kerns attended, and spoke at, a November 17, 2020 hearing on the pending motions.

The Court denied each affirmative motion Ms. Kerns filed – including even the motion to withdraw – rejected the relief requested in the Complaint and Amended Complaint, and dismissed the case. The Third Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed.

Lawyers lose motions and cases all the time and doing so does not subject an attorney to discipline – otherwise many of us would be disciplined regularly. Our request for investigation and discipline relies not exclusively on the outcome of these filings, but in that Ms. Kerns pressed these matters without any proper basis in law or fact. She sought remedies that served a political agenda, but that lacked any legal rationale or merit. She advanced a lawsuit that bolstered Mr. Trump's propaganda, ignoring the consequences to the public and the commands of the Rules of Professional Conduct.

As evidence of that, your office should consider the following:

The lawsuit named Secretary of State Boockvar and Seven Democratic County Boards of Elections as Defendants. The factual basis for suing Secretary Boockvar and the seven Democratic counties rested on the two Individual Plaintiffs having had their mail-in votes canceled. Prior to election day, Secretary Boockvar had sent an email to counties encouraging them to allow mail-in voters to cure their ballots if any problems are detected during the pre-canvas period. Importantly, the two Individual Plaintiffs' ballots were canceled not by any of the Defendants, but by Lancaster and Fayette counties – neither of which Plaintiffs chose to sue. In other words, Ms. Kerns chose to bring this matter not against the counties who caused her clients' harm, but against counties whose voters favored Joe Biden.

The requested relief for the alleged harm of Lancaster and Fayette Counties canceling the two Individual Plaintiffs' ballots was to prevent Defendants from certifying the entire election. The Individual Plaintiffs theorized that failing to count their ballots violated the Equal Protection Clause. As a remedy to the alleged violation, they sought either: (1) an order "prohibit[ing] the Defendant County Boards of Elections and Defendant Secretary Boockvar from certifying the results of the 2020 General Election in Pennsylvania on a Commonwealth-wide basis" or (2) an order "prohibit[ing] Defendants from certifying the results of the General Elections which include the tabulation of absentee and mail-in ballots which Defendants improperly permitted to be cured."[8] Thus, Individual Plaintiffs asserted as their injury the denial of their right to vote and to redress that injury, they sought to have millions of others' right to vote denied. As the District Court noted:

> Neither of these orders would redress the injury the Individual > Plaintiffs allege they have suffered. Prohibiting certification of the > election results would not reinstate the Individual Plaintiffs' right > to vote. It would simply deny more than 6.8 million people their > right to vote. "Standing is measured based on the theory of harm > and the specific relief requested." It is not "dispensed in gross: A > plaintiff's remedy must be tailored to redress the plaintiff's > particular injury." Here, the answer to invalidated ballots is not to > invalidate millions more.[9]

The District Court Found that Plaintiffs Concocted Their Theories to Avoid Controlling Precedent. Plaintiffs initially asserted seven causes of action. Four days later, the Third Circuit

Court of Appeals issued an opinion in another case that directly affected Plaintiffs' ability to assert several of their claims. As such, they amended their complaint and excised five of the seven original causes of action, leaving just one equal protection claim and one cause of action premised on the Constitution's Electors and Elections Clause.[10] The Court stated that the equal protection claim was, "like Frankenstein's Monster…haphazardly stitched together from two distinct theories in an attempt to avoid controlling precedent."[11] The Plaintiffs sought to make a broad attack on the mail-in voting procedures, a claim that Third Circuit precedent clearly and directly prevented. So, instead, for purposes of standing, they cited as the basis for the lawsuit the canceling of Individual Plaintiffs' ballots and then "on the merits, Plaintiffs appear to have abandoned this theory of harm and instead raise their broader argument that the lack of a uniform prohibition against notice-and-cure is unconstitutional."[12] It was "not lost on the Court" that such a "mix-and-match" effort improperly sought to bypass precedent contrary to the Plaintiffs' claims.[13]

The Plaintiff Trump Campaign Failed to Offer a Theory of Its Injury or a Basis for its Claim. The Individual Plaintiffs at least asserted a valid theory for their harm – a denial of their vote – even if they did not sue the counties that caused the harm and even if they sought an unconstitutional, legally baseless remedy. But:

> The standing inquiry as to the Trump Campaign is particularly nebulous because neither in the [First Amended Complaint] nor in its briefing does the Trump Campaign clearly assert what its alleged injury is. Instead, the Court was required to embark on an extensive project of examining almost every case cited to by Plaintiffs to piece together the theory of standing as to this Plaintiff – the Trump Campaign.[14]

In conducting that review, the District Court found that the Plaintiff Trump Campaign was advancing two theories: associational standing and competitive standing. With regard to associational standing, Plaintiff Trump Campaign relied on "inapposite"[15] cases and also failed to inform the Court of another "particularly relevant, very recent decision" in which a federal court rejected the Trump Campaign's exact argument that it was now advancing in Boockvar.[16] With regards to its competitive standing argument, the Court found the assertion "at best, misguided."[17] The Plaintiff relied on cases that had no similarity to the present matter or that actually "contradict" their arguments. "It is telling," the Court further stated, "that the only case

[10] Even then, Plaintiffs acknowledged that under the new Third Circuit case, they lacked standing to raise the Electors and Elections Clause claim, but stated they included it to preserve the issue for appellate review. Nevertheless, when Plaintiffs later appealed the District Court's order, they did not appeal the Electors and Elections Clause issue.

from the Third Circuit cited to by Plaintiffs, Marks v. Stinson, does not contain a discussion of competitive standing or any other theory of standing applicable in federal court."[18] In short, the Court held that "the Trump Campaign has not pled a cognizable theory."[19]

The Claims Plaintiffs Asserted Lacked Even Plausibility. To survive the motion to dismiss, Plaintiffs needed only to have asserted claims that were plausible when accepting their well-pleaded facts as true. The Court dismissed Plaintiffs claims even under this deferential standard. With regards to the Individual Plaintiffs, the Court held that Defendants could not credibly be alleged to impose a burden on Individual Plaintiffs' right to vote by lifting the burden on their own residents' ability to vote. "Expanding the right to vote for some residents of a state does not burden the rights of others."[20] The Trump Campaign lacked even that level of plausibility. As the Court noted, "Plaintiffs' brief in opposition to the motions to dismiss spends only one paragraph discussing the merits of its equal-protection claim."[21] That one paragraph raised two arguments – one of which was not pleaded within the Amended Complaint and the other of which relied on Bush v. Gore and failed because "(1) they misapprehend the issues at play in that case; and (2) the facts of this case are distinguishable."[22]

The Pleadings Included Allegations Recycled from a Lawsuit Dismissed a Month Earlier in a 138-page Opinion. Nearly half of the paragraphs in the original Complaint filed by Ms. Kerns were duplicates of allegations made in Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Boockvar, 2:20-cv-00966-NR (W.D. Pa.). The Court in that case granted summary judgment to defendants, holding that plaintiff relied on "hypotheticals, rather than actual events" and that the plaintiffs' theory "does not appear to be any law to support it."[23] Importantly, the plaintiffs did not even appeal that decision.

The Complaint and Amended Complaint Make Over Three Dozen References to "Fraud," But Do Not Actually Assert Any Claims Premised on Fraud. In an effort to support their public propaganda, Plaintiffs littered their pleadings with allegations or references to fraud or fraudulent actions. But, importantly, none of their actual claims rested on any claims of fraud or improper conduct. Indeed, as Plaintiffs' counsel stated at the motion to dismiss hearing, the Trump Campaign "doesn't plead fraud. … [T]his is not a fraud case."[24]

The District Court Denied Plaintiffs' Motion for Leave to File a Second Amended Complaint and the Third Circuit Upheld That Order. Despite a favorable standard that encourages district courts to freely grant leave to file amended complaints, the District Court denied the request. The Plaintiffs appealed that decision and the Third Circuit upheld the District Court, finding that allowing an amended complaint would be inequitable and futile. The Court focused on the fact that that, like the two other complaints: (1) the Second Amended Complaint "is light on facts,"[25] (2) that "[t]he Campaign has already litigated and lost most of these issues"[26] and instead was improperly seeking to "collaterally attack those prior rulings,"[27] (3) no factual allegations actually support the causes of action;[28] and (4) "the Second Amended Complaint seeks breathtaking relief: barring the Commonwealth from certifying its results or else declaring the election results defective and ordering the Pennsylvania General Assembly, not the voters, to choose Pennsylvania's presidential electors. While Representing Mr. Trump, Ms. Kerns Made Public Statements Accusing Officials of "Criminal Mismanagement" Of the 2020 Election While Conceding in Every Case She Was Involved in That She Was Not Alleging Fraud. Ms. Kerns represented Mr. Trump in four separately filed cases.[30] During the course of that representation, Ms. Kerns tweeted from her Twitter account and accused election officials of "criminal mismanagement."

At the same time, in every case in which she represented Mr. Trump, Ms. Kerns admitted that she was not alleging any voter attempted to improperly vote. For example:

- "[T]he parties specifically stipulated . . . that there exists no evidence of any fraud, misconduct, or any impropriety with respect to the challenged ballots."[31]
- "Petitioners do not allege that there is any evidence of fraud, misconduct, impropriety, or any undue influence committed with respect to the challenged ballots."[32]
- Court: "[Y]ou are not alleging fraud or irregularity as the basis, . . . is that correct?" Ms. Kerns: "I'm alleging that these ballots were not filled out correctly."[33]

- Court: "[W]ould you agree with me that you are not proceeding based on allegations of fraud or misconduct. . ." Ms. Kerns: "I am not proceeding on those allegations."[34]

But as Ms. Kerns's tweet shows, she was engaging in the same practice as the rest of Mr. Trump's legal team: make broadly sweeping claims of fraud and a stolen election publicly, including in the Complaint and Amended Complaint in Boockvar, but then acknowledge when pushed by the courts that they were not claiming fraud nor presenting evidence of any fraud.[35]

A SUBSTANTIAL BASIS EXISTS FOR THE OFFICE OF DISCIPLINARY COUNSEL TO INVESTIGATE MS. KERNS'S CONDUCT AND TO IMPOSE APPROPRIATE DISCIPLINE

The Office of Disciplinary Counsel should investigate Ms. Kerns's actions on the following basis:

1. Ms. Kerns Violated Rule 3.1 By Bringing and Defending a Matter She Knew Lacked Merit

Rule 3.1 provides, in part, as follows: "A lawyer shall not bring or defend a proceeding, or assert or controvert an issue therein, unless there is a basis in law and fact for doing so that is not frivolous, which includes a good faith argument for an extension, modification or reversal of existing law."

Comment 2 states that: "The action is frivolous…if the lawyer is unable either to make a good faith argument on the merits of the action taken or to support the action taken by a good faith argument for an extension, modification or reversal of existing law."

Further, [a] claim advanced in a proceeding is considered frivolous if it lacks any basis in law and fact. Adams v. Dep't of Pub. Welfare, 781 A.2d 217, 220 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2001).

As the District Court's and Third Circuit's treatment of the matter demonstrate, the Complaint and Amended Complaint that Ms. Kerns signed and filed lacked any basis in law or fact. As a sampling of their views of the litigation:

- "This Court has been unable to find any case in which a plaintiff has sought such a drastic remedy in the contest of an election, in terms of the sheer volume of votes asked to be invalidated."[36]
- "This Court has been presented with strained legal arguments without merit and speculative accusations, unpled in the operative complaint and unsupported by evidence."[37]

[37] Id.

- "This claim, like Frankenstein's Monster, has been haphazardly stitched together from two distinct theories in an attempt to avoid controlling precedent."[38]
- "That Plaintiffs are trying to mix-and-match claims to bypass contrary precedent is not lost on the Court. The Court will thus analyze Plaintiffs' claims as if they had been raised properly and asserted as one whole for purposes of standing and the merits."[39]
- "The former finds no support in the operative pleading, and neither states an equal protection violation."[40]
- "That deficiency aside, to the extent this new theory is even pled, Plaintiffs fail to plausibly plead that there was 'uneven treatment' of Trump and Biden watchers and representatives. Paragraphs 132-143 of the [First Amended Complaint] are devoted to this alleged disparity. None of these paragraphs support Plaintiffs' argument."[41]
- "Granting Plaintiffs' requested relief would necessarily require invalidating the ballots of every person who voted in Pennsylvania. Because this Court has no authority to take away the right to vote of even a single person, let alone millions of citizens, it cannot grant Plaintiffs' requested relief."[42]
- "Rather than requesting that their votes be counted, they seek to discredit scores of other votes, but only for one race. This is simply not how the Constitution works."[43]
- Four times in the Third Circuit opinion, the Court refers to the Plaintiffs citing no authority for its propositions:
  - "The Campaign cites no authority suggesting that an actor discriminates by treating people equally while harboring a partisan motive, and we know of none."[44]
  - "[T]he Second Amended Complaint seeks breathtaking relief: barring the Commonwealth from certifying its results or else declaring the election results defective and ordering the Pennsylvania General Assembly, not the voters, to choose Pennsylvania's presidential electors. It cites no authority for this drastic remedy."[45]
  - "It cites no federal authority regulating poll watchers or notice and cure. It alleges no specific discrimination. And it does not contest that it lacks standing under the Elections and Electors Clauses. These claims cannot succeed."[46]
  - "But nothing in the Due Process Clause requires having poll watchers or representatives, let alone watchers from outside a county or less than eighteen feet away from the nearest table. The Campaign cites no authority for those propositions, and we know of none. (Ditto for notice-and-cure procedures.) And the Campaign litigated and lost that claim under state law too."[47]

Indeed, perhaps the Third Circuit said it most clearly: "Free, fair elections are the lifeblood of our democracy. Charges of unfairness are serious. But calling an election unfair does not make it so. Charges require specific allegations and then proof. We have neither here…The Campaign's claims have no merit."[48]

"Knowledge" under the Rules of Professional Conduct can be "inferred from circumstances."[49]

Ample evidence demonstrates that Ms. Kerns knew of the frivolous nature of the litigation she initiated. As the District Court noted, the Plaintiffs "haphazardly stitched together" their claims to avoid controlling precedent.[50] Further, these matters had already been litigated (and lost) as state-law claims. Additionally, the lawyers defended the Trump Campaign's equal protection claim in a single paragraph. Moreover, the clear disconnect between the asserted injuries and requested relief would be apparent to any lawyer seeking to make a meritorious and redressable claim. Finally, both the District Court and Court of Appeals repeatedly refer to the Plaintiffs' failure to allege relevant facts or cite any authority for their legal propositions.

Ms. Kerns knew the claims she was advancing in this matter lacked any basis in law or fact. She did not seek a good-faith extension, modification, or reversal of the law – she simply ignored it. Indeed, the one instance in which Plaintiffs acknowledged that controlling precedent prevented their claim, they told the District Court that they nevertheless included it to preserve for appeal – and then did not even appeal that issue.

It is unnecessary to speculate about the motivations giving rise to Ms. Kerns's disregard for Rule 3.1 – unnecessary both because the Rule does not require it and because the intent is clear from the disconnect between the stated injury (two individuals' votes being canceled in non-Defendant counties) and the requested relief (invalidating between 1.5 million and 6.8 million votes).

No matter the reasoning or rationale, Ms. Kerns violated Rule 3.1 and should be disciplined.

2. Ms. Kerns Violated Rule 3.3 By Making False Statements Regarding Law to the Court and Failing to Correct Those Statements

Rule 3.3(a)(1) provides that a "lawyer shall not knowingly make a false statement of material fact or law to a tribunal or fail to correct a false statement of material fact or law previously made to the tribunal by the lawyer."

Comment 4 states that, "Legal argument based on a knowingly false representation of law constitutes dishonesty toward the tribunal. A lawyer is not required to make a disinterested exposition of the law, but must recognize the existence of pertinent legal authorities."

[50] Memorandum Opinion at 11.

The District Court's opinion notes that Plaintiffs improperly sought to avoid controlling precedent by concocting theories and that the Trump Campaign cited cases that was, "at best, misguided."[51]

In fact, the District Court noted that the way in which the Plaintiffs presented their arguments required the Court itself to "embark on an extensive project of examining almost every case cited to by Plaintiffs to piece together the theory of standing as to this Plaintiff – the Trump Campaign."[52] In doing so, the District Court found that not a single case cited by the Plaintiffs stood for the proposition they were making about the Trump Campaign's standing.

That is not candor, that is misrepresentation. It is one thing for an attorney to rely on a case or two that fail to ultimately support the attorney's proposition. But, here, the entire basis for the Trump Campaign's assertion of standing lacked merit. And as the District Court's opinion demonstrates, the Plaintiffs' lawyers were not forthright about that fact – they hid that and forced the District Court to discern it for itself. Such conduct violates the Rules of Professional Conduct.

3. Ms. Kerns Violated Rule 4.4 Command That Lawyers Respect the Rights of Third Parties

Pursuant to Rule 4.4, "In representing a client, a lawyer shall not use means that have no substantial purpose other than to embarrass, delay, or burden a third person."

Comment 1 to the Rule states, "Responsibility to a client requires a lawyer to subordinate the interests of others to those of the client, but that responsibility does not imply that a lawyer may disregard the rights of third persons."

In the interests of her clients, Ms. Kerns sought to have between 1.5 million and 6.8 million Pennsylvanians lose their right to vote. Incredibly, while asserting that, "Every legal – not illegal – vote should be counted,"[53] Plaintiffs sought the opposite. Paradoxically, while challenging the denial of two people's right to vote, the remedy Plaintiffs fought for was the canceling of every validly cast ballot.[54] The District Court stated as much: "Granting Plaintiffs' requested relief would necessarily require invalidating the ballots of every person who voted in Pennsylvania. Because this Court has no authority to take away the right to vote of even a single person, let alone millions of citizens, it cannot grant Plaintiffs' requested relief."[55]

The Court of Appeals went further, directly calling the Plaintiffs' effort one that would harm others:

> Granting relief would harm millions of Pennsylvania voters too.
> The Campaign would have us set aside 1.5 million ballots without > even alleging fraud. As the deadline to certify votes has already passed, granting relief would disenfranchise those voters or sidestep the expressed will of the people. Tossing out those ballots could disrupt every down-ballot race as well. There is no allegation of fraud (let alone proof) to justify harming those millions of voters as well as other candidates.[56]

In addition, in the lead-up to Election Day, Ms. Kerns wrote a letter to the City of Philadelphia demanding that the City turn over to Ms. Kerns a list of all voters who dropped ballots in the Philadelphia City Hall drop box on October 14, 2020.[57] Ms. Kerns seemed interested in harassing and intimidating those voters – and challenging their right to vote – even though she later acknowledged in all court matters that there were no concerns about any voter's eligibility.

4. Ms. Kerns Engaged in Misconduct that Violates Rule 8.4

Under Rule 8.4, "It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to…violate or attempt to violate the Rules of Professional Conduct, knowingly assist or induce another to do so, or do so through the acts of another; [or] engage in conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation; [or] engage in conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice."

Ms. Kerns participated in a purposefully dishonest effort to undermine the 2020 election. She brought frivolous claims that the Constitution, prior court decisions, and relevant statutes barred. The bare "factual" bases she relied on were supported by false statements and wild speculation. As both the District Court and Court of Appeals found, no legal or factual grounds existed for the claims Ms. Kerns advanced.

Moreover, although the District Court generously called some of the legal arguments Plaintiffs advanced as "at best, misguided,"[58] they were actually misrepresentations of law. "When alleged attorney misconduct is misrepresentation in violation of professional conduct rule prohibiting conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit, or misrepresentation, prima facie case is made where record establishes that misrepresentation was knowingly made, or made with reckless ignorance of truth or falsity of representation." Office of Disciplinary Counsel v. Price, 732 A.2d 599, 557 Pa. 166. The fact that the District Court also found a Frankensteinian effort to concoct legal arguments to evade controlling precedent demonstrates the knowing nature of the misrepresentations and dishonesty involved in this matter.

Furthermore, Ms. Kerns assisted others in violating the Rules of Professional Conduct. Mr. Giuliani actively participated in the Boockvar litigation and Ms. Kerns attended the November 17, 2020 hearing with Mr. Giuliani. When directly asked by the Court whether she had more to add to Mr. Giuliani's argument, she indicated she did not.[59] And at that hearing, Ms. Kerns reasserted her belief that "our equal protection claim is well established and strong" and

"warrant[s] the extraordinary relief of the preliminary injunction."[60] The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York has suspended Mr. Giuliani for his role in the efforts to overturn the 2020 election – and specifically cited the Boockvar litigation as a basis for his discipline.[61]

Finally, although the strongest basis for disciplining Ms. Kerns rests in her conduct around the Boockvar litigation, the Office of Disciplinary Counsel should consider the fact that Ms. Kerns participated in three other litigated matters between November 3, 2020 and December 8, 2020, all of which Ms. Kerns lost, at each level of review. Just as Mr. Giuliani sought to create a national narrative of fraud, Ms. Kerns endeavored to do the same within Pennsylvania. It all amounted to a dishonest attempt to undermine the public confidence in the 2020 election. It is easy – indeed, necessary – to also recognize the direct link between the use of the courts to bolster a false narrative about the vote's outcome and the events of January 6, 2021, when people believing that the 2020 election was stolen stormed the Capitol in a violent insurrection.

The United States Supreme Court has long recognized in upholding disciplinary actions that "speech by an attorney is subject to greater regulation than speech by others."[62] As officers of the court an attorney is "an intimate and trusted and essential part of the machinery of justice" and a "crucial source of information and opinion."[63] Although attorneys, of course, maintain First Amendment rights, the actions in question here cross far beyond protected speech. Indeed, disciplinary boards and courts considering the conduct of other lawyers involved in the effort to overturn the 2020 election have rejected assertions that the attorneys enjoyed First Amendment protections for their conduct.

That members of our esteemed profession would engage in such actions – conduct that contributed to substantial harm to American democracy – should cause considerable distress within the entire legal community.

> False statements intended to foment a loss of confidence in our elections and resulting loss of confidence in government generally damage the proper functioning of free society. When those false statements are made by an attorney, it also erodes the public's confidence in the integrity of attorneys admitted to our bar and damages the profession's role as a crucial source of reliable information.[64]

Ms. Kerns chose to offer her professional license to an assault on our democracy. She pursued litigation that lacked any basis in law or fact. She participated in an organized effort to sow discord and doubt about the 2020 elections. She helped lead the charge in Pennsylvania to disenfranchise millions of her fellow citizens because she did not like how they voted.

To some extent, Ms. Kerns has already endorsed the Office of Disciplinary Counsel imposing discipline against her. During the Boockvar litigation, Ms. Kerns filed a motion for an order to show cause because an attorney uninvolved in the matter left her a "rude and ill-conceived voicemail."[65] Even after the firm apologized, Ms. Kerns sought sanctions.[66] She called the apology "not good enough under the Rules of this Court or the Pennsylvania Rules of Professional Conduct, and this Court's authority to issue sanctions exists in order to protect litigants, counsel, and the Rules themselves…An appropriate sanction should issue—one which deters such misconduct in the future."[67]

We share Ms. Kerns's belief that lawyers who violate the Rules of Professional Conduct must be met with sanctions that deter such future abuse of the court system and the Rules. Every court that has considered Ms. Kerns's allegations with regards to the 2020 election has rejected them. The District Court and the Third Circuit Court of Appeals made very clear that Ms. Kerns's assertions lacked any basis in law or fact. And yet, Ms. Kerns continues to insist otherwise.
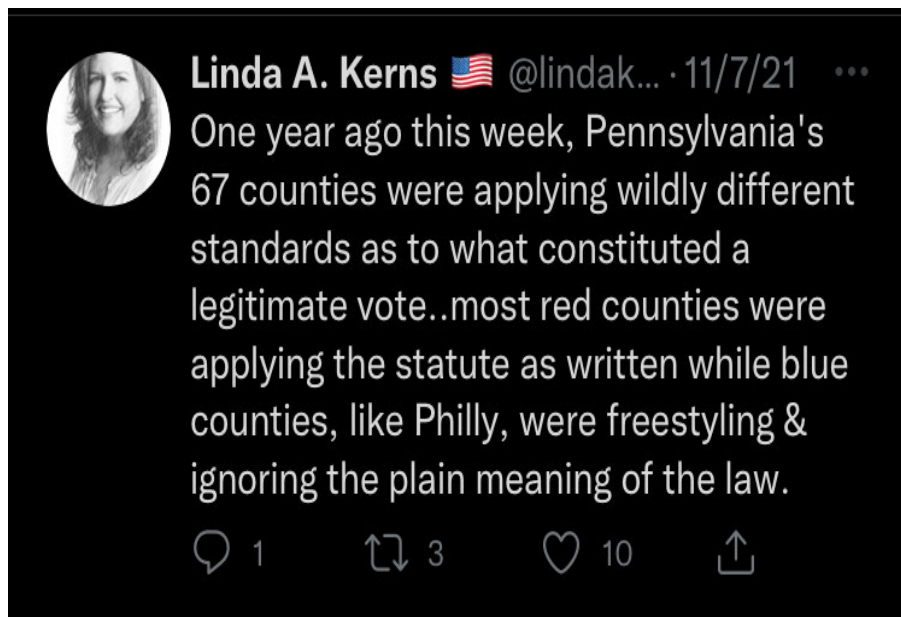

Hundreds (if not thousands) of well-reasoned legal opinions and analysis by federal and state courts cannot convince Ms. Kerns. Thus, it appears, that the best, and perhaps only, mechanism to deter future efforts to undermine elections through frivolous litigation is for the Office of Disciplinary Counsel to pursue discipline against Ms. Kerns that results in the suspension or loss of her law license.

For the reasons set forth above, we respectfully request that the Office of Chief Disciplinary Counsel investigate Ms. Kerns's conduct and pursue appropriate discipline.
